

Elite Touch Renovations ❓❓❓ Question-Keyword Gaps

elitetouchrenovations.au — Last 3 Months (Google Search Console)

Filtered for: 6+ word question-style queries, high impressions relative to this site's volume, and near-zero clicks.

This site is thin on volume (6.01K impressions / 48 clicks over 3 months, average position 37.3), so "high impressions" is relative here. One cluster stands out clearly above the noise.

The opportunity: "how long does a bathroom renovation take"

Query	Impr.	Clicks	Position
how long does a bathroom renovation take	15	0	20.5
how long does it take to renovate a bathroom	6	0	25.5
how long to renovate a bathroom	5	0	20.8
how long does bathroom renovation take	3	0	21.7
how long does it take to remodel a bathroom	3	0	24.7
how long does it take to redo a bathroom	2	0	21.5
how long to do bathroom renovation	2	0	29.0
(7 more single-impression variants of the same question)	7	0	16-29

~42 impressions, 0 clicks, across the whole cluster.

Ranking page: <https://www.elitetouchrenovations.au/blog/bathroom-renovation-timeline-sydney/> — position 17.8 overall (page 2). The page's title is a literal match ("How long does a bathroom renovation take?"), so it's getting found — it's just not converting the click.

Risk: none. Position 17-29 is deep page 2/3 — nowhere near page 1, so there's no ranking to protect. Edit freely.

Why it's not converting

I opened the page. It deliberately withholds a number — the copy literally says giving “an attractive number of days” is less useful than explaining the process. That's defensible as an honest sales philosophy, but it's the opposite of what wins clicks and featured snippets for a “how long does X take” query. Searchers want a ballpark before they'll click through for the nuance.

Paste-ready fix

Add this as a new block right under the H1, before the existing “The short answer” section (keep that section below it — it's good supporting content, just needs a number-led opener first):

Quick answer

Most bathroom renovations in Sydney take [X–Y weeks] from demolition to final handover, depending on room size and whether layout or plumbing positions are changing. A simple like-for-like refresh sits at the shorter end; a full reconfiguration with new waterproofing and custom tiling sits at the longer end.

Renovation type	Typical duration
Like-for-like refresh (same layout)	[X–Y weeks]
Standard renovation (new fixtures, same footprint)	[X–Y weeks]
Full renovation (layout change, waterproofing, custom tiling)	[X–Y weeks]

Timeframes are on-site working time and assume no unexpected issues once walls are opened up. [Get a fixed timeline for your bathroom →]

You need to fill in the actual week ranges — I didn't fabricate numbers since this is a specific business claim. Once that's in, this block is also your best shot at the “how long does a bathroom renovation take” featured snippet, which is exactly what's driving the 0% CTR right now.

What to do first

Add the week-range table to the bathroom timeline page. Zero risk, clear win, just needs your real numbers.